(This syllabus is subject to occasional revisions. This preliminary version is published on 03/09/2025)

Course Description:

Religion is among the most complex and enduring social phenomena and has, in one way or another, been an intricate part of human societies for many a millennium. Even in the aftermath of the scientific revolution in the 16th century when societal views about nature were transformed leading to the prospects of a more secular world, religion remains a persistent component of human experience. Thus, it is imperative that religion be comprehended as a social force and one of the major drivers of sociocultural change -or a hinderance to it.

Not questioning the validity of any religious belief per se, this course aims to introduce students to the sociological study of religion and to familiarize them with the basic theoretical tools of some of the most prominent classical theorists in social sciences. The objective is to be able to more deeply understand and more thoughtfully analyze the possible origins, the place and the role of religion and its various manifestations, as a sociocultural phenomenon, in the modern world. The course will also examine how certain major social forces such as modernization, secularization, globalization, fundamentalism, social conflict, and the struggle for justice and equality affect, and are affected by, religion and religious institutions

Course Format:

This course will be conducted in a hybrid format. A few of the class sessions will take place via Zoom. Those will be announced with at least a week's notice.

The structure of the course will consist of weekly reading assignments that you are expected to keep up with, some lecturing by me on the readings and related topics, your questions, concerns, and comments to encourage class discussions. Some audio/visual material related to the topic of the week will be part of each session. (The videos indicated here are tentative and subject to substitution.)

Course Requirements:

Required Books:

- Pals, Daniel L., Ten Theories of Religion. New York: Oxford University Press, 2021, 4th edition (a previous version, Nine Theories of Religion, by the same author, will also work for the course.)
- Furseth, Inger and Pal Repstad. An Introduction to the Sociology of Religion: Classical and Contemporary Perspectives: 2nd edition, Burlington: Ashgate Press, 2023
- Holloway, Richard. A Little History of Religion. New Haven: Yale University Press, 2017

There will be additional readings assigned in the form of articles and/or short book chapters and posted on Canvas at least one week ahead of the session when the readings are due for class discussions. The links to the videos listed here are tentative and subject to change.

Attendance and Participation in Discussions: This is your class! It is you who have decided to take this course in order to further excel your knowledge and understanding of the subject matter. Attendance and informed participation in class discussions are essential to benefiting from this course. Unjustified absence would jeopardize this as well as affect your final grade. If you are unable to attend class, please let me know ahead of time as soon as you can, indicating your valid reason.

Through your faithfully keeping up with the readings, being attentive in class and sharing your questions and comments on a regular basis, we can make this course a more interesting and enjoyable experience for all of us. I ask you to please refrain from calling and/or texting during class. There will be a 10-minute break around the middle of each week's session.

Weekly Memos: Starting with the readings for Week 2 and ending and including with the readings for the last class session, you are required to turn in a 3-page summary of what we just covered (i.e. in Week 2) including the reading assignments, videos we watched, and major topics we discussed in class.

Each weekly memo is due 48 hours after the end of the corresponding class and should be emailed to me. Please: no late submissions. Memos submitted after this deadline and up to another 48 hours will get only 50% of the credit.

The purpose of these assignments is to help you review what has just been covered in the readings and class discussions. A satisfactory memo is one that gives a general and broad summary of the topics and the main points in each week's assigned readings with some emphasis and brief discussion on one or two of the most important points, demonstrating that you have done the readings, understood the main points and can represent them in writing. Your memos will comprise 20% of your overall grade for the course.

On your memo, please make sure to include your NAME, COURSE #, DATE, and "MEMO for WEEK__".

Also, when emailing me for any reason, please remember to always include in the Subject box the Course number ("SOCI-156") and what you are writing to me about.

Mid-Term Exam: There will be a mid-term exam, during Week 6 (May 07) of class. It will consist of a combination of short answers and paragraph-long essays related to the assigned readings and the other material covered during our class sessions up to that point. There will be no reading assignment or memo due on Week 6. Memos will resume in the following week (Week 7) on the assigned readings.

There will be no make-up exam given except in exceptional and extraneous conditions such as in documented medical or family emergencies.

Final Exam: The Final exam will cover all the material that we will have covered since the Midterm exam (readings, video documentaries, and class discussions). It will consist of essay questions and will be administered on June 10 at 5:00 pm. The format -whether in-person or via Zoom- will be determined at least one week before the exam.

Grading: The following distribution is a close approximation. I will not be using an exact mathematical formula. The final grade will be at the discretion of the instructor taking into consideration your entire performance in this course.

Class attendance and participation..... 20%
Weekly memos..... 25%
Mid-term..... 25%
Final exam ..... 30%

To Succeed in This Course

To gain from and succeed in this course, the bulk of the responsibility rests on you. I play the role of the facilitator, but your part is primary and without fulfilling that you cannot expect to gain fully from this course. You would need to keep up with the reading assignments, pay close attention to the video documentaries we will be watching and discussing during our sessions, and complete and turn-in your weekly memos on time. Do your best to ask questions and make informed comments. Lack of participation in class discussions will affect your final grade. Do all this and you will finish this course most profitably and with a high grade.

Learning Outcomes:

By the end of this course, you will have developed a wider perspective and a deeper understanding of the basis for the emergence of religion in human society, including a more comprehensive knowledge and understanding of the assumptions underlying the major classical theories of religion. Moreover, you should be able to analyze and evaluate various religious issues from the different interpretive standpoints offered by the many theorists we will study and discuss.

Academic Integrity

All written work must represent your original work. Using “short-cuts” and presenting someone else’s work as your own undermines the whole purpose for being here, namely, to improve and excel your learning and creative process. You should by now be familiar with the UCSD Policy on the Integrity of Scholarship (<http://academicintegrity.ucsd.edu>) which you are expected to follow.

All knowledge is to be shared and built upon -and sometimes also, applying reason and evidence, it is to be refuted. When you use the ideas or work of another person to augment your own argument, make sure to identify the original author. Whether you are paraphrasing, summarizing, or giving direct quotations, the original source needs to be clearly cited. It is your responsibility to recognize the difference between statements that are common knowledge and restatements of the ideas of others. If in doubt, let us discuss it.
